Dear Donna,

Thank you very much for the feedback. I will work hard to try and listen better as we move forward in this process. With respect to the FA fee, I have a call scheduled with Rothschild to discuss it. Could you please advise how you would like me to prioritize the structure as below:

with them and see what their recommendation is in this regard, given our concerns of doing this deal. Unless you have another recommendation?

Regards,
Jennifer

Subject: Genesis Feedback

Jennifer:

I would like to give you some feedback regarding active listening following our discussion two weeks ago. I am doing it via email in the interest of time. Since I am essentially acting as the client on the Genesis project, I will give you feedback on our two recent Genesis discussions from the perspective of a client.

You said and did a lot of things in the last two weeks that made me feel confident that you understand the needs of the project. There were, however, some misses with respect to the process of identifying a financial advisor. Although the lapses were small, they leave an impression. I am considering spending $60 million in a risky country, so any time it seems we are not on the same page I will get nervous.

■ Prior to our calls, I had communicated Q's need for an FA firm (1) that will be approved by and have credibility with Japan (meeting all of their criteria for a trusted FA) and (2) that will proactively advise MCHA and Q from a risk perspective, providing greater than usual hand holding. During our first call, you were overly focused on your new list, seemingly abandoning Jordon's original list even though it contained options that better met the first criterion. During the second call, I was surprised that you were still so strong on A10 without any attention to whether they would be found acceptable by Japan. I was also surprised that you were still promoting IGC without any response to my significant concerns. At times, I knew you had Q's criteria in mind, but at other times I did not think you were hearing me.

'Listening' as I've framed it is about your commitment to understanding what the client wants and needs. Asking the following questions during our first call would have helped you clarify Q's needs:

Please remember that when you are defensive or argumentative you run the risk that you will end the discussion believing you have successfully advised your clients when in fact you have simply silenced them.

Please accept this feedback as coaching on both how to 'listen' and how to make your clients feel like you are listening. You have done a great job of moving this project forward during the last couple of weeks.

Please read this email again.

Thanks,
Donna
